TWO DAY WORKSHOP

with Professor

MAURIZIO ANDOLFI

Master Family Therapist

“The Self of the Therapist”

18th & 19th of May 2020 at the Castle Hill RSL Club

“He emphasised the need for the therapist to rid themselves of their “professional mask”. ”

Professor Andolfi is a pioneer of family therapy and has spent over 50 years working with family therapists around the world at his prestigious Accademia in Rome, Italy, on what he refers to as the therapist's “handicap”. He stresses the need to look at ourselves and how we use the “self” of the therapist in therapy. This helps the therapist to develop personal resonance in the therapeutic process. He emphasizes the need for the therapist to rid themselves of their “professional mask”. He believes that only then can the therapist begin to appreciate using their full self and humanity fully in therapy with clients.

This workshop will explore when and how it is appropriate to self-disclose, share personal events or fragments of experiences from our own family, or stories of other families we meet in therapy that might be of therapeutic relevance and benefit to our clients in session.

Whittaker said the journey of “growing as a therapist” as going through the process of learning about family therapy to the process of doing family therapy, to the point of being a family therapist. According to him, what comes next is more freedom to care without the danger of becoming an adopted parent.

This master series workshop will inspire, challenge and liberate clinicians to shift and reflect on their clinical practice and “thinking” in how to better connect with families using their self in therapy.

Learning will take the form of experiential exercises, the use of family sculpture, role play and the use of prescriptions. Professor Andolfi will be launching his new DVD on training Family Therapists on the Use of Self in this workshop. This is a “must-do” workshop for any aspiring therapist.
